Task 1

An interesting house

Paragraph one

A la Ronde is an unusual 18th century house in South West England. The owners, two cousins, Jane and Mary Parminter, were from this area, but the house has a French name. 'Ronde' means 'round' and that's why the house has this name. The house has sixteen sides so it is almost circular.

Paragraph two

E (Example). You can move from room to room following the sun. You can also look out of the windows on each of the sixteen sides. Because of the elevated position of the house, you can see down the hill to the sea.

Paragraph three

1. This was that they needed somewhere to keep the many souvenirs they gathered in Europe. They went to France, Germany, Italy and Switzerland. They probably also went as far as Spain and Portugal.

Paragraph four

2. If you visit it, you can see souvenirs of their travels, which range from some birds' eggs to valuable stones. Many of these items are now on public display in a special cupboard that used to hold their private collection. This cupboard is still in the place where the two cousins first put it.

Paragraph five

3. They also decorated the house themselves. The shell gallery is amazing! The cousins arranged 25,000 seashells in patterns on the walls. The shells break easily, and so, to keep them intact, you can no longer go inside the gallery. But you can see the shells in detail on a computer screen.
